Read the following passage and answer the questions:

As the world's population continues to grow and climate change makes it more difficult to produce food in the traditional way, scientists are developing new ways of growing plants efficiently. One of these ways is growing plants without soil. Although this may sound like a modern process, it is not new technology. Ancient Egyptian writings describe how plants were grown in water, and early examples include the famous gardens of Babylon and floating gardens built by the Aztecs in Mexico. In traditional farming, soil protects the roots of plants, but scientists have shown that plants do not need soil to grow. As long as they can get nutrients from somewhere, they will grow successfully. To grow plants without soil, special fertilizer is added to water and the plants take this in through their roots.

Recently, this technology has developed very quickly. It is common in northern Europe where it is used to grow food crops. Vegetables have been grown in submarines and astronauts have produced food in space using this technology. Many people think that growing plants in water could help to solve the world's food problems. As cities become larger, there is less land for agriculture. Countries with little land for growing crops could produce more of their food without soil. This way can also be used in areas with poor soil, such as deserts, and in areas near the sea where salt water is damaging the soil. Perhaps soon there will be no areas of the world where food cannot be produced.
